

CONFERENCE CLOSES, APPOINTMENTS READ

CONFERENCE COMES TO A CLOSE TODAY

Eighty-Second Annual Session of Indiana M. E. Organization Now
Matter of History.

A BUSINESS SESSION ONLY

Treasurer's Report Shows $142,172
Had Been Collected For Benev-olences in Year.

The eighty-second annual Methodist Episcopal Indiana conference came quietly to a close this morning a few minutes after eleven o'clock at the St. Paul church, although there was some rush in closing the business because Bishop William F. Anderson desired to leave for his home in Cincinnati at 11:39 because of an important appointment.

Some delay was experienced because of the fact that the treasurer of the conference, W. H. Whitted of Ellettsville, who was detained in preparing his report, did not arrive when he was expected. It was desired to wind the affairs of the conference according to the usual custom, which calls for the reading of the appointments last. It was suggested that the custom be done away with this time to avoid delay, but at that moment the treasurer arrived.

The conference cabinet has been experiencing some very strenuous times. All of the appointments were not definitely settled even this morning when the business session opened even though the cabinet had been in session from seven o'clock last night until midnight. The cabinet also met Saturday afternoon and Saturday night.

After the business session was well under way this morning, the chair was given over to one of the ministers and Bishop Anderson called the cabinet into session again, which resulted in some changes being made in the list of appointments. Three changes were made in the Vincennes district after the list had been read.

The report of the treasurer showed the conference to be in a healthy condition. The total collections for all benevolences in the conference during the year, the report indicated, amounted to $142,172. An increase for the year of $13,007 was noted. Included in this sum was the amount going to the Home Mission and Church Extension board—$15,170. Also included was $20,869 which was contributed in the conference during the year for foreign missions. The total disciplinary benevolences in the conference during the year was $87,196, an increase in this department for the year of $13,700. This fund is that which is spent outside of the conference and is included in the grand total.

The business session this morning, for the most part, was taken up with the reading of the reports of the standing committees.

It was also announced that Bishop Anderson had ruled that no minister should employ an evangelist without first consulting the district superintendent.

A ten pound boy was born yesterday morning to the wife of Mart Clevenger in East Fifth street.

PROGRAM ENDS WITH BIG CROWD

Mammouth Audience Attends Close of Indiana M. E. Conference at Christian Church.

TWO SECRETARIES SPEAK

Meeting Marks Close of Sunday Replete With Splendid Gatherings —Ordination Ceremony.

Sunday marked the close of the program of the Indiana M. E. conference with the exception of the business session this morning, and it was replete with meetings pertaining to a wide variety of subjects. Congregations of the city listened to a visiting minister in their respective pulpits Sunday morning, but in the evening they joined in a union meeting at the Main Street Christian church, the largest auditorium in the city, except the coliseum, and it was packed to the doors with people.

The meeting was announced for the coliseum, but could not be held there due to inclement weather. Good crowds gathered at all of the churches Sunday morning, but many people were turned away from the St. Paul M. E. church where Bishop Anderson delivered the annual conference sermon. Many people heard the Rev. C. W. Tinsley of Uniontown, Pa., who spoke at the Christian church.

The Rev. William F. Oldham of New York, general secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions and formerly missionary bishop to India, spoke last night at the anniversary of the board. He said God reached the heart of the man and woman in India just as He did in the United States, because the Christian religion appeals to the human side of nature. He declared that from reports he had received from India, the heart of the country is profoundly moved. He said that a passion was in the mind of India where the most profoundly devout souls are found.

The Rev. Mr. Oldham told the conference that last year was the most wonderful one in the foreign mission field that the Methodist church had ever known. Over 25,000 persons were baptized from paganism and Mohammedanism in India during the last eleven months, he said. The Rev. Mr. Oldham reported that the China M. E. conferences had advanced five per cent. in membership in the last year and that in the last three years more Mohammedans had been baptized in the Christian religion than ever before.

"It has been the most glorious year God has ever given to us," he concluded, "and we are looking into the dawn of a better day. We expect a million members of the Methodist church in India in a few years."

At the anniversary of the Board of Sunday schools last night, the Rev. Edgar Blake of Chicago, the secretary, made the address, and in addition it was a farewell service for the Rev. Wallace Miner who will leave in October for China as the first Sunday school representative ever sent by any church to the foreign field. At the conclusion of the Rev. Mr. Blake's address he was introduced and spoke briefly. He said

ERBA PRICE IS SET FREE

Case Against Him Suddenly Terminates This Afternoon When he Changes Plea.

HE ENTERS ONE OF GUILTY

On Agreement Judge Megee Suspend
Sentence of 2 to 21 Years—
A Petition.

Erba Price, who was charged in a grand jury indictment with involuntary manslaughter for causing the death of his father, William Price, former county sheriff, Friday, August 29, was arraigned before Judge John D. Megee in the circuit court about four o'clock this afternoon and entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

Judge Megee sentenced him to a term of from two to twenty-one years in the state reformatory, finding him to be twenty-eight years old. Upon the recommendation of Prosecutor Donald Smith the sentence was suspended by Judge Megee.

The sudden termination of the case will come as a big surprise except to a few people who knew that a petition had been circulated by John F. Joyce, requesting that this action be taken in the case.

The petition was signed by 187 persons. It requested that Judge Megee consent to suspend sentence in case Erba Price change his plea from not guilty to guilty. The petition was presented to Judge Megee only a few minutes before his decision to act favorably on it was given.

Judge Megee made a brief talk to the prisoner, explaining his reason for agreement to suspend sentence.

Erba Price, who is employed in Ft. Wayne, was visiting his father here the week of the county fair. Friday morning about eleven o'clock of that week, he and his father quarreled in front of Price's drug store. In the scuffle, Erba struck his father. The coroner found the former sheriff's death was due to the blow. The grand jury made a similar finding in the indictment.

DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

W. T. Abernathy Expires From Heart Disease in Homer.

W. T. Abernathy, 70 years old, a well known resident of Homer, died Sunday morning at nine o'clock at his home there. Mr. Abernathy had been ill for about two years suffering from heart disease and complications. He is survived by a widow and four children, Charles, Edward, Alonzo and Mrs. Lilly Miller. He is also survived by five brothers. The funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at the Pleasant Ridge church and burial will take place in the church cemetery.

ATTEMPTS TO PASS BAD CHECK

Miss Hazel Simmonds Gives Game
Away by Walking Out Not Waiting on Change.

ADMITS IT WAS FORGERY

Tells Police Many Different Stories—
Says it Was Signed by Harry Love.

As a result of an attempt Saturday night of Miss Hazel Simmonds to cash a check at the Knecht clothing store, which was a rank forgery, the police will make an investigation and believe they will land the signer of the check. The girl while aware that the check was a forgery, according to the police, is not being held as they wish to get the party that signed the name to the check.

Miss Simmonds is eighteen years old and has been employed at the home of John Widau, north of the city for the past year. She is an orphan and formerly lived in Centerville, Ind. The girl went to the Knecht store Saturday night about eight o'clock and purchased an umbrella for two dollars, giving in payment a check for twenty dollars, payable to Lulu Williams. The check was on the Mays bank and was signed by Carl A. Bell. The check was endorsed by Lulu Williams. The name Carl A. Bell was not known at the Knecht store and when Mr. Knecht went to the telephone to inquire at Mays concerning the check the girl picked up the umbrella and left the store.

When she did not even wait for her change the natural supposition was that the check was no good and the police were called. The girl was found about two hours later and at first denied all knowledge of the check and even stated that she did not take the umbrella from the store. She was caught by Chief McAllister just as she was getting in the Widau machine to go home.

After some time the girl stated that she wrote the check but the police believe that she did not sign the name of Carl Bell to it and are making an effort to find who did. She told the police that she had been going with Harry Love of Centerville and who is at present employed in Richmond. The girl was up at Richmond only last week and stated that she had filled the check out before going to Richmond and that Harry Love signed the name of Carl A. Bell to it before she left him. The police will visit Harry Love and see what he knows. The girl was allowed to go Saturday night. The police had difficulty getting anything from the girl as she told several different stories.

GEORGE SWEET SUCCEUMS

Dies at Home Here After Long Illness.

George Sweet, 63 years old, at one time a well known blacksmith of this city, died this morning at three o'clock at his home in West First street. Mr. Sweet had been ill for a long time and death was expected. His death was due to a disease of the brain and complications. He is survived by his widow and four children, Charles, Burney, Frank and Edna. The funeral services will be conducted at the late residence Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock and burial will take place in the Richland cemetery.

WEATHER MAN PREDICTS FROST

Says Tuesday Will be Fair But Cool
Weather Will Continue—38 Degrees This Morning.

GENERAL THROUGHOUT STATE

Clouds Prevent Frost Last Night—is Expected to be Clear Tonight
According to Bulletin.

Frost is promised by the weather man for tonight. The day throughout was very cold for this time of the year and the thermometer did not go above fifty degrees. The weather man also says that Tuesday will be fair but that the cool weather will continue.

Rushville residents who were so unfortunate as to be aroused at 6 o'clock this morning shivered in an atmosphere that the weather man branded as 38 degrees. That was the time at which the lowest temperature was reached for the twenty-four hours preceding 7 o'clock.

The cloudy sky that prevailed almost throughout the entire state was all that prevented a general frost in Indiana. Frost had been predicted on the assumption that the sky would become clear. It did in the southwest part of the state and a light frost was the result. It was not severe enough to do much damage.

The cool weather will continue tonight, the weather man says, but he expects the sky to clear. Also, he predicts frost. Tuesday will be fair and warmer, so his bulletin reads. The change will result from the low air pressure area which is moving this way from the west and northwest.

The light showers, which added a raw touch to the cool atmosphere last night, were general throughout the state. The temperatures recorded at 7 o'clock this morning reached an average of about 40. It was 39 at Auburn, in the north, and 42 at Evansville, in the south. A temperature of 42 degrees was registered in Indianapolis at that hour.

IRVIN STEVENS ASKS FOR PAROLE

Petition Board of Pardons For Release—is Serving Term For Petit Larceny.

Irvin Stevens, sentenced to from one to eight years in the State Reformatory at Jeffersonville, from the local court in November 1912, has asked the board of pardons for a parole. The petition asking for his release has been circulated here and Attorney Christman of Connersville is working to get him released.

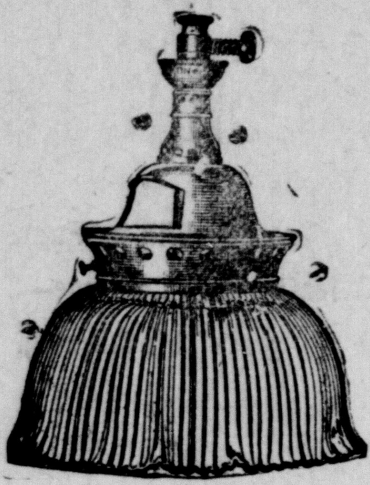

Stevens was arrested last September on a petit larceny charge preferred by Vern Dolan of near Falmouth. Stevens was indicted along with Leroy Link and Ed Johnson but the charges against the other two were dismissed when Stevens pleaded guilty and stated that they were not implicated. It will be remembered that Stevens was caught only after he had defied the police and robbed several homes along the Rush-Fayette county line. Dolan alleges that Stevens stole a gun, a pen knife, a gold ring and several other articles.

LONG ARGUMENT IN SULZER CASE

Impeachment Proceedings to Be a Lawyers' Battle.

BOTH SIDES WELL PREPARED

Today and the Two Succeeding Days Will Be Given Over to Contentions of Opposing Lawyers Regarding the Admissibility of Certain Evidence and Points of Procedure in Impeachment of New York's Governor.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Before the taking of testimony can commence, the vital preliminary question which must be determined by the high court of impeachment tomorrow or the next day, is whether the court can take cognizance of the truth or falsity of Governor Sulzer's sworn election expense statement.

This point is to be raised by the governor's lawyers as soon as the court disposes of the contention that the assembly could not impeach Governor Sulzer at a special session unless the subject of impeachment was referred to the legislature by the governor for consideration.

The general anticipation is that the court of impeachment will indorse the view expressed by Judge Hasbrouck in his recent ruling on the Robin pardon case. Then will come the second point of Governor Sulzer's counsel, that Articles 1, 2 and 6 of the impeachment should be stricken out upon the ground that they refer to the governor's receipt and expenditures of campaign contributions before Jan. 1, when he assumed the office of governor. They insist that Governor Sulzer cannot be questioned regarding acts before he assumed office. If the court should determine this question in favor of Governor Sulzer the impeachment trial would end then and there, as the other five articles trail along after those most important ones and would have no substance if the court cannot pass upon the truth or falsity of Governor Sulzer's sworn statement of election expenses filed with the secretary of state.

Counsel for the assembly managers, who are prosecuting the impeachment articles have prepared an elaborate brief which reviews seventy-seven impeachments under the federal and state governments since the establishment of constitutions in nation and state for the guidance of the court, and Senator Brackett is to argue against the contention of the Sulzer lawyers, that only acts committed by Governor Sulzer since Jan. 1 can be regarded in impeachment articles. Senator Brackett feels so confident that the governor's alleged misuse of organization funds will be considered by the court, that the managers' counsel have gone ahead and prepared the evidence in affidavit form and have it in clean legal shape. It is said that only one-third of the evidence regarding Governor Sulzer's receipt of campaign funds which is in the possession of the Frawley committee and the assembly board has been made public.

HE REALIZED HIS CRIME

Hans Schmidt's Case Leads Another Murderer to Confess.

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—Jacob Wolfsohn, who on Saturday confessed the murder of Anna Catherine Schumacher four years ago in Holy Sepulcher cemetery at Rochester, N. Y., was brought to the full realization of his crime by reading of the atrocity committed in New York by Hans Schmidt. This was his admission to Detective Captain Cameron.

Wolfsohn strangled Miss Schumacher while she was placing flowers on the graves of her father and sister, and concealed the body in the woods and then returned at night and buried it in a shallow grave.

For four years he kept his secret. But his conscience was not dead; down deep it was pulsating faintly and the Schmidt murder was the lash that brought it back to a tingling activity.

Wolfsohn was regarded here as a man of education. He declares his father was a wealthy land owner and that his brother, Dr. Leopold Wolfsohn, was noted throughout Russia as a specialist on nervous diseases.

Chauffeur "Borrows" Death Car.

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—One man is dead and two others are dying as the result of a joy ride in an automobile which was "borrowed" without permission from the garage of the owner, by his chauffeur, Joseph Hickey, nineteen years old, who was driving when the crash occurred, and a friend, Thomas White, who were badly injured. The man killed was Bertram Price, who was picked up on the way by the party in the auto.

DUBLIN'S STREETS IN HANDS OF WILD MOB

Sunday Rioting Marks Street Car Strike.

Dublin, Sept. 22.—Last night there was another fierce riot here as a result of which seven policemen and thirty-five civilians are in various hospitals and many others were treated and sent to their homes.

After a noisy and exciting day, during which violence was threatened every hour, a procession of about 10,000 formed at dusk outside of Liberty hall, the headquarters of the transport workers, and started to parade through the streets. Two hundred constables escorted the demonstrators, who marched to stirring airs played by Irish pipers. Both banks of the Liffey were crowded with onlookers. Shouting, cheering and singing, the parade reached Grafton street, where several tram cars were obliged to halt because of the great throng which had gathered. Suddenly and without any warning a stone crashed through the glass window of the first car and then a shower of stones followed. It was evident from the number that were thrown that the marchers had filled their pockets with the stones before they started.

The passengers in the cars cowered below the seats and thus escaped serious consequence, but many were cut by flying glass. The mob then began to attack the police. The batons of the constables were swinging in a moment while missiles of all sorts were hurled at the police. The mob advanced up the side streets from which it rained stones, bottles and other articles on the police. The rioting rapidly spread. Police reserves appeared and dashed among the rioters amid screams and curses. The mob of men, women and children on the occasion of these dashes would break and scatter and then reform elsewhere. The melee went on in this fashion in several streets, until finally the mounted men got ahead of the mob in Lombard street, and with the help of the foot police broke up the rioters.

MEXICAN KILLS ROOT'S NEPHEW

Outcome of Drunken Quarrel Near El Tigre.

AMERICAN CONSUL REPORTS

Morris F. Root, Nephew of Senator Elihu Root, According to Official Dispatches From Mexico, Fell Victim to His Own Intoxication and Imprudent Behavior in the Company of Several Intoxicated, Hot-Headed Mexicans.

Mexico City, Sept. 22.—A telegram from the American consulate at Guadalajara reports that Morris F. Root, nephew of Senator Elihu Root, was stabbed to death by a Mexican named Leonardo Aguilar, near the mining camp of El Tigre. This report had been received from Henry M. Hale, a well known American mining man, who is at Tepic, near the El Tigre camp. According to the version sworn to before the Tepic authorities by John Baker, another American, who is Root's partner, the latter's death was due to intoxication and imprudent behavior.

Baker says Root became intoxicated with Aguilar and three other Mexicans near El Tigre. Root threatened the Mexicans with a revolver and Aguilar took the weapon away from him and gave it to another Mexican. Then when Root was about to get back the revolver, Aguilar stabbed him with a knife.

HORRIFIED AND AMAZED

German Capital Shocked by Scandal Involving Prominent Persons.

Berlin, Sept. 22.—Berlin is horrified and amazed over the disclosure of a scandal at Breslau which involves many prominent people. The full story has not yet been told, but it seems that a certain house of Augusta Strasse in Ohlau, a suburb of Breslau, has been used for a long time as a center of immorality. It was constantly visited by seventy-two schoolgirls, some of whom are quite young.

One of the most deplorable features of the scandal is said to be that the parents of the girls not only winked at the immorality, but in some cases actually promoted the relations of the men with their daughters.

After fourteen men had been arrested for their connection with the scandal, eight others committed suicide. The latter included a military officer and a retired police lieutenant. Among those arrested were a physician, two dentists, some prosperous tradesmen and some parents of the girls.

HE CHAFES AT LAW'S DELAY

Murderous Priest Seems Anxious For the Electric Chair.

New York, Sept. 22.—Hans Schmidt, the assistant rector of St. Joseph's church, who killed Anna Aumuller, the rectory maid, on Sept. 2, and then dismembered her body, was examined as to his sanity in the Tombs Sunday afternoon by Dr. Gustav Scholer, a former coroner, who is a member of the board of managers of the state insane asylum on Ward's Island. He did not know until near the close of an hour's talk that his visitor was a physician interested in his defense, and then, according to his lawyer, Schmidt shrugged his shoulders and said: "Why bother yourself about me so much. Go ahead and expedite this thing. I'm going to the electric chair."

Prisoners Successful Colliers.

Peterhead, Scotland, Sept. 22.—That counterfeit banknotes, so skillfully executed as to deceive local bankers and shopkeepers, were made by convicts in the Peterhead prison, was a startling discovery made by Scotland Yard detectives. In printing the banknotes the convicts used paper in which rations had been served them.

Quick Justice in Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 22.—In an hour's time Charles Banks, colored, was indicted by a special grand jury, his plea of guilty entered, sentenced to the reformatory and sent to prison. Banks was on his way to prison less than twenty-four hours after he had attacked a white girl. It is the record for speedy justice in Illinois.

Freighter Runs Down Small Boat.

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 22.—Four sailors from the torpedo boat destroyer McCall were run down in a small power cutter by the freighter Seaboard in Long Island sound. The small boat was cut in two and sank instantly, carrying three sailors with it to their death.

He Wouldn't Stand For It.

Nashville, Ind., Sept. 22.—James Ayers, a farmer of Johnson township, was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to jail for ten days for whipping his wife. While sitting at the dinner table she struck him over the head with a plate and he retaliated.

Wants People to Vote on It.

London, Sept. 22.—The Daily Express is organizing a petition to the king asking him to withhold his assent from the home rule bill when it has been passed until the electors of the United Kingdom have been consulted.

NEW YORK'S TOUCHING TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD

Never Did City Have Such a Funeral as Gaynor's.

New York, Sept. 22.—All city business save the essentially imperative paused for an hour this forenoon, during the time of the funeral of the late Mayor Gaynor, while an enormous throng gathered in the vicinity of old Trinity and on the streets leading thence to Greenwood cemetery, where the body was given interment. The funeral cortege was the largest ever noted in this city, emphasizing again the remarkable esteem in which the late mayor was held by all classes. On Sunday there were such evidences of the public mourning for Mayor Gaynor as daunt simple accurate description. One can only say that 70,000 people passed reverently through the city hall and looked upon the mayor's face; that they were unmindful of rain and that they endured with patience and orderliness such as the mayor preached as rules of life, the tediousness of a two-mile march.

From 8 o'clock in the morning until midnight there was a vast triangle of moving columns which extended over a space of two miles. Not less than 100,000 massed in lower Manhattan, drawn by their desire to express respect for the mayor's memory or by respectful interest, but not more than 70,000 of these were able to pass by the casket containing the remains in the time stated. The people entered two at a time.

Without any doubt there was a greater outpouring of citizens to honor the memory of a great man than was ever known in the history of New York. Men who remembered the day in 1865 when the body of Abraham Lincoln lay in state in the city hall, thought that the crowds of Sunday were greater by a third than appeared to honor the martyred president. It was a vaster assemblage than was remembered by those who recalled the episodes of the day General Grant's body lay in the city hall, and other occasions, such as the manifestations of public respect for Henry Clay, for Horace Greeley, for General Joseph Hooker and for others who had done their work for the nation, and had then passed on, were not comparable to Sunday's stupendous gatherings.

PROGRAM ENDS WITH BIG CROWD

he felt the work in which he is the pioneer is the noble work in which a young man can engage because heathenism molests the youth of foreign lands and in them lies the salvation of the races which have not been wholly or even partly Christianized.

Although only five years old, the Board of Sunday Schools has done a wonderful work already, according to the secretary. After its organization a careful canvass of the situation was made and it was found the Sunday schools in foreign lands, wherever they had been established, were declining, the Rev. Mr. Blake said. And when it is considered, he continued, that four-fifths of the church members come from the Sunday schools, the condition was decidedly grave.

In the ten years previous to 1908, when the board was organized, the Rev. Mr. Bake said, the increase in Sunday school membership had amounted to only 44,000, but that the increase in the last five years, due to the efforts of the board, had been 900,000, 250,000 of which came last year. He said the Sunday schools had reported over 800,000 conversions in the time the board had existed. In the same time the Sunday schools have sent in cash $3,000,000 to the foreign missionary field.

He declared the most remarkable advance in the work marked it the most wonderful achievement of the church. He said the Sunday school impulse had not come to the conferences in the foreign lands where many Sunday schools are showing decreases and the gains are small. He said the sending of the Rev. Wallace Miner was only a beginning because the board intended to place representatives in all the foreign fields as fast as it was possible.

A class of fifteen elders and a class of fourteen deacons were ordained yesterday afternoon with the usual conference ceremonies. The Rev. William S. Bovard, of New York, secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood, who was present, declared it to be the most impressive ceremony he had ever seen in any conference.

The Rev. W. B. Farmer of Evansville, chairman of the board of examiners, which is the faculty of the conference, presented each of the elders with a diploma signifying they had completed the four years' course of conference study. Before the diplomas were given, the Rev. J. B. Nicholson of New York, general secretary of the board of education, was asked to speak by the bishop. The Rev. Mr. Nicholson said the problem of the ministry today was to preserve the benefits of culture and still not feel so dependent on them that the spiritual teaching would be forgotten. He declared himself to be heartily in favor of the conference course of study and education in a theological school.

The class of elders included: William H. Ake, George E. Bennett, Herbert A. Brodwell, Samuel H. Caylor, Valentine Deich, E. Arthur Dougherty, John H. French, John A. Gardner, George Harbison, John M. Hinkle, Oscar Jean, E. T. Lewis, Albert Z. Mann, Golden A. Smith, and Edward L. Moore. The deacons were: Oliver M. Deal, William E. Fisher, Carl F. Glick, Joseph G. Grimes, Joseph G. Moore, Willard C. Patrick, Charles E. Smith, Albert J. Spaulding, Lewis F. Ulmer, Elmer A. Hart-saw, Charles G. Galbraith, Walter M. Briggs, James W. Johnson and Ernest C. Clark. The latter was unable to be present at the West Ohio conference ordination last week because of death in his family and came here to be ordained.

At the anniversary of the Methodist Brotherhood following the ordination, the secretary, the Rev. Mr. Bovard, said the organization was called into being for the conservation of humanity. He declared that the organization intended to show the church it should use the bi-product of humanity just as the great industries use the bi-products of their plants and make finished products of great worth, and with profit. He said the making of Christian men out of the present generation of boys alone would not supply the need, but that the church must lift up the fallen in the ranks of men. Mr. Bovard said the brotherhood advocated the application of spirituality to modern needs and the giving to it of dynamic force. If anything in social reform is accomplished, he predicted, there must be spirituality. He urged that every minister organize a brotherhood in his church because the biggest industries in the world pale into insignificance when compared to tasks of Christianity.

Before Dr. Bovard spoke Bishop Anderson called James E. Watson to the platform to preside. He refused persistently, but finally consented when the big audience of men applauded vigorously. Mr. Watson said he had insisted that his name not be on the program and that he have no part in it, except that he was on the program committee, because the conference was in his church and his home city.

In calling him to preside, Bishop Anderson made many gracious and complimentary remarks concerning Mr. Watson. He referred to him as the most distinguished citizen in the city, and as the distinguished statesman in both state and nation.

Mr. Watson said he had been educated with thoughts of the ministry, but while in college wandered off into the materialistic. He declared that if he had known in his youth what he knows now, he would have entered the ministry. He asserted that he wanted no office.

"If the newspapers will leave me alone and men will stop villifying me," he said vehemently, "so that that which makes me strike back will not be brought out, I will devote the remainder of my life to build up some interest of the church." This declaration was greeted with prolonged applause.

"I have been most wonderfully uplifted and helped by this conference," continued Mr. Watson, "and by the visit of Bishop Anderson and his wife at my home. I don't know what would become of me if they stayed a week longer. The Bishop is a Godly man, a man who is working for good, and you are to be congratulated for having him as a presiding officer."

At the hour of the anniversary of the Methodist Brotherhood, a rally for women was held at the Main Street Christian church and was addressed by Mrs. William F. Anderson. Mrs. J. P. D. John of Greencastle presided.

In the annual conference sermon Sunday morning Bishop Anderson said the ideal of the church was to be an engine of progress. He said every church remember that it is not an end within itself, but a means to an end. Christ discovered the place of the individual, he declared and the same applies to the collection of individuals—the church—it must lose itself in the common weal. He said there never was a time when bi-products counted for so much and when the world was so tremendously aggressive, but it is well to remember that one of the basal principles of the church is the saving power of Jesus Christ.

Bishop Anderson recalled that one day of the week was once considered sacred and all others secular, but under the broader, present-day interpretation of the Gospel every hour of every day of the week is held sacred and a time for doing something for the Lord. He said a new emphasis was being placed on the salvation of the child and of the adult, even of the most vicious type. The choir of the First church of Connersville sang at this service. Bishop Anderson complimented the people of Rushville for the entertainment given the conference and said he realized it was no small task for a city of this size. He expressed the gratitude of the conference.

Visiting ministers occupied the pulpits here Sunday as follows: Main Street Christian, the Rev. C. W. Tinsley of Uniontown, Pa.; First Presbyterian, the Rev. J. P. D. John of Greencastle; United Presbyterian, the Rev. John S. Ward of Shelbyville; First Baptist, the Rev. Jesse Breeden, Cincinnati; Salvation Army, the Rev. George S. Henninger of Bloomington; Second M. E., the Rev. I. G. Penn of Cincinnati; Second Baptist church, the Rev. J. E. Murr of Moores Hill. Pulpits in several places in the county were also supplied.

Saturday night at the anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid Society the Rev. I. G. Penn of Cincinnati, the secretary, said 70 per cent of the negroes in the United States can read and write, largely due to the efforts of Christian churches. He declared the negro to be loyal to his country, that he has faith in his outcome and for the most part is a law-abiding citizen and peaceable laborer. The negro never strikes, the Rev. Mr. Penn asserted, he quits. He said a Georgia law provides a fine and imprisonment for persons who take negro laborers out of the state.

The negro owes most of his present condition to the Methodist church, Mr. Penn asserted, and no one knows it better than the negro. With a capital of $500 the Freedmen's Aid Society was organized a few years ago he said, and now owns property valued at $1,725,000. There are 600 teachers in and 15,000 graduates from educational institutions of the society. He said there were 325,000 negroes in the Methodist church. Last year the society was given $119,000, he said, $36,000 of which was given by the colored people, an average of 12 cents per capita while white people gave an average of 3 cents per capita. He declared the negro is grateful.

The Rev. J. W. Hancher of New York, secretary of the Board of Education, said at the anniversary of the board Saturday night that the fund to help ministerial students, which had been accumulating forty years, now amounted to $1,700,000. He said the board was founded for the purpose of helping worthy men who studied for the ministry, but that its aims and purposes had been extended. Mr. Hancher said notes for loans were cancelled in case of failure of health, in case the persons go to the mission field and do good work and are never held against the widows of deceased ministers. He said $3,743 was loaned in this conference and $2,500 was paid back by ministers in this conference last year. Mr. Hancher told of the activity of the board in educating poor children in the south and in Montana and declared it to be the duty of the church to train children in the Gospel because the state does not do it.

The following ministers were transferred to this conference: J. F. Rainier from the Northwest Indiana; Albert E. Young, Kentucky and Ezra T. Hutch from Northwest Indiana. The following transfers from this conference to others were made: Charles W. Anderson to North Indiana; Frank O. Beck, Rock River; John F. Bloucher, North Indiana;

Frank H. Collier, Northwest Indiana; Jesse Denbo, North Indiana; J. S. Goodwin, Robert E. Garnall, Luther E. Markin and Jesse O. Powell to Northwest Indiana; Josephus G. Grimes, North Indiana and Harry E. Hess to Nebraska.

At the educational platform meeting Saturday afternoon President George R. Grose of DePauw university declared the divorcement of church and college to be due to the fact that the college stands for investigation and the church for devotion. He said the danger in detachment from college led to fanaticism and from church to materialism. He declared culture for its own sake was never recognized as it is today. President Harry A. King of Moores Hill college and President Charles M.

Stuart of Garrett Biblical Institute, Ill., also spoke.

ASKED TO OBSERVE TUBERCULOSIS DAY

Churches Schools and Labor Unions
Will Participate in Movement
—Designated For Dec. 7.

200,000 REPRESENTATIVES

Churches, schools, labor unions, fraternal orders and other organizations to the number of 200,000 at least, will be asked to join the anti-tuberculosis workers of the country in the observance of the Fourth National Tuberculosis Day, which has been designated for December 7th, according to an announcement issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The movement will be fanned throughout the country by more than 1,000 anti-tuberculosis societies working through the various state organizations and the national association. Personal appeals will be made to clergymen, school principals and leaders of various organizations urging them to set aside a definite time during the week following December 7th for a lecture on tuberculosis.

Last year over 60,000 churches gave attention to this subject on Tuberculosis day. It is hoped this year to swell the number of churches to 100,000 and to urge similar action besides in a large number of other societies. The Tuberculosis Day campaign will come this year during the Red Cross Christmas Seal sale. It is planned to urge the churches of the country to take a definite part in this movement.

The observance of Tuberculosis Day was endorsed last year by President Taft, Cardinal Farley, Roosevelt and many other prominent churchmen and public officials. Proclamations calling upon the people to observe this day were issued by the governors of more than a dozen states and by the mayors of a considerable number of cities.

ROAD TAX MUST BE PAID IN CASH

Farmers Under New Law Will be Allowed to Work Out Only $20 of Amount.

NOTICE WAS HANDED DOWN

State Board of Accounts Decided That This Was the Limit—Checks Lot of Graft.

The Rush county farmer who has made it a practice to work out his road tax will discover that that privilege was taken away from him by the last legislature.

The state board of accounts has just handed down a notice to the effect that $20 is the limit to which any taxpayer may work out his tax obligation.

The act curtailing the privilege of working out all of one's road tax is found on page 871 of the Acts of 1913, being Section 18 of House Bill 603. It reads in part as follows:

"Provided that any person or corporation owing taxes so assessed on real estate shall be permitted to work out the same up to twenty dollars as nearly as practicable in the district in which such real estate lies, and on taxes assessed on personal property the persons owing same shall be permitted to work out same up to the amount of twenty dollars in the district where the owner resides."

The statute provides that this tax shall be thirty cents upon the $100 on both real and personal property. An additional levy of ten cents may be levied for bridge repair, etc.

Under the old law, the entire road tax could be worked out. This privilege was greatly appreciated by farmers, nearly all of whom were able to find sufficient spare time to do the work and thereby save themselves from having to make a cash outlay.

The system, however, led to widespread abuses, and it said to have begotten a shameful practice of graft. The chief offenders were big corporations, particularly the railroads, and in order to stop this and make sure that the state got what it was entitled to in road tax, the legislature repealed the old law and put through an enactment which while it may work something of a hardship on the farmer, will put a stop to the cheating of the state by the big corporations and the conscienceless contractors to whom they were wont to let their road tax work.

Some persons have contended that under the new act a taxpayer could work out taxes to the extent of $20 in each district of his township, but according to the interpretation given the act by the state board of accounts the limit to which anyone can work out his road obligation is $20. The remainder of taxes due must be paid in cash to the county treasurer.

"The Secret Formula" will be the attraction.

"The Passing Show of 1912" is said to be the last word in diversity, color, humor, specialty, scenic splendor and concentration of individual talent. Indeed, the company boasts of a remarkable array of names that the public has long assembled with dramatic excellence.

There can only be admiration for a management enterprise enough and liberal enough to assemble in one organization of this character such standard stage artists as Trixie Friganza, Clarence Harvey, Charles Prince, Howard and Howard, Texas Guinan, Mantello and Lloyd, Moon and Morris, Earnest Hare, Louise Brunello and a beauty chorus of eighty, and it would appear that the company is big enough for almost any undertaking.

The performance itself is so bewildering as to be hardly susceptible of description. "The Passing Show of 1912" presents burlesques on many of the most important of this and last season. The entertainment is replete with novel features among which is the "Sumurun" runaway. It starts from the entrance to the auditorium from the stage and leads over a runway in the center aisle from the extreme rear to a point in the front center of the stage directly in line with the music director's chair of office. The run is illuminated, the paraders are in full costume, and the movement is both rapid and graceful. A huge swinging tank filled with perfumed water is another big feature.

The scenery in which the action is set is gorgeous enough to satisfy the most exacting demand for spectacle, yet never overstepping the bonds of good taste. The costumes are varied, beautiful, entirely new and therefore fresh and attractive. The programme and the manner of carrying it out are sufficiently novel from the ordinary to give the entire exhibition the quality of novelty, and the reason for its prolonged engagement in Chicago, Boston and New York, will soon be made apparent to local playgoers.

A more vertiginous and kaleidoscopic show is not to be found in a season's journey in stagemod than the New York Winter Garden production of "The Passing Show of 1912," to be offered at the Shubert Murat Theater, Indianapolis, the latter half of this week, beginning next Thursday, September 25th and including Matinee's on Friday and Saturday.

THE ISLAND OF THE STAIRS

Being a True Account of Certain Strange and Wonderful Adventures of Master John Hampdon, Seaman, and Mistress Lucy Wilberforce, Gentlewoman, In the Great South Seas.

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Copyright, 1912, by Cyrus Townsend Brady

Well, I was arguing against my wishes from a sense of duty, so I at last gave way. After all the treasure might be there. If so, it was hers, and it would be a shame not to get it. The pulse of adventure leaped in my veins.

"So be it," I said.
"Will you help me to make my arrangements? You are accustomed to the sea, and—"

"I will do more than that," said I. "With your gracious permission I will go with you."

"To the island?"
"To the end of the world," I replied.

She extended her hand to me and I tried to kiss it like a gentleman. I made, no doubt, a blundering effort, but at least it was that of an honest man.

"I must go and get ready to go to Master Ficklin's in the town," she said softly. "You know the house."

I nodded.
"Come to me there tomorrow and we will talk further about the project."

When we broached the subject to Master Ficklin the next day at his house, he would not hear of it. He examined the parchment with interest, but poo-pooed the tale because, forsooth, it had no legal backing and, was couched in the phraseology of the sea rather than in the dry verbiage of the law. He pointed out that he had only succeeded in saving this last £2,000 of my lady's fortune because he had skillfully concealed its existence from Sir Geoffrey. He asked pertinently what would happen to her when all was gone and she had found no treasure, the very existence of which he affected to disbelieve.

A very hard headed, practical person was Master Ficklin. I had stern ideas of duty, too, and Master Ficklin's good sense ever appealed to me. Yet when did mere good sense ever appeal to a woman against her wish? My lady had the gambling instinct, too—I wonder she did not have it stronger, since 'twas in her blood—and she would fain challenge fortune.

The end of it was she made over her £2,000 to me without requiring me to give any bond, which Master Ficklin would fain have insisted upon and which would have been embarrassing indeed for me, for my bond would have been my own capital, which I was going to embark in the enterprise in secret. I had saved up that money with no one knows what foolish dreams. I realized those dreams would come to naught. I had no one dependent upon me. Brother or sister I never enjoyed, and father and mother were both dead. What need had I for money? Let her have it whose need was great and whose desire was greater. I might have bargained for a share of the treasure did we find any, but I scorned to do it. I would give all and expect nothing for it.

At any rate, not being in any hurry, although I was frantically urged by my lady, who could scarcely possess her soul in patience before she began her treasure hunting, I looked about a good deal in order to get just what I wanted. Finally from a merchant of Plymouth I purchased a stout little ship of three hundred and fifty tons burden called the Rose of Devon, which had been engaged in the West Indian and the American colonial trade.

It was my first design to have gone as master of her myself, and my lady would fain have had it so, but after reflection I decided it were better to have a much older man than I to command so long as she went as a passenger, and so I engaged a worthy seaman, one Samuel Matthews, old enough to be my father, with whom I had often sailed; in fact, the man under whom I made my first cruise. I did engage myself as mate, however, and I even tried in vain to induce Master Ficklin and his sister to go with us.

It seemed proper in venturing among islands filled according to common report with savage peoples to provide for fighting. Therefore, after consulting with Captain Matthews, whom I fully acquainted with the entire project in all its details, I shipped a crew of thirty men and I provided in the equipment plenty of muskets, pistols and cutlasses, with the necessary powder and ball, and in addition a small brass cannon which I mounted on the fore-castle. Nor did our cargo lack means for friendly trading and barter should such be found practicable.

Naturally the unusualness of these preparations attracted attention, and Captain Matthews and I were overwhelmed with applications from adventurous men who desired to make the voyage, surmising that it was after treasure of some sort.

I left the work of engaging the crew to Captain Matthews. He had as boatswain a seaman named Pinball, in whom he placed great confidence. He was a villainous looking man with a white scar running from his left eye across his cheek, caused by a cut he had received in some fight, and the line of white showing against the bronzed, weather beaten cheek he sported did not improve his appearance. But that he was a prime seaman was evident. Captain Matthews seemed to have great confidence in him.

To anticipate, when we boarded the ship I liked the crew not much better than the boatswain. I will say this for them, however, that a smarter, quicker set of seamen never hauled on brace or laid on yardarm. It was not their skill or strength or courage that I did not like, but they were not the kind of men I would have sought for a ship of my own, and the presence of my lady and her maid, a worthy woman, a long time servant at the castle, who had elected to follow her fortunes, made me timid, yet I was not unusually apprehensive. I had a sublime confidence in my own ability to deal with any man or any group of men.

I did not stint the outfitting of the ship, and when I finished, having left nothing out that either my own or Captain Matthews' experience or imagination would suggest, there was left of our joint funds enough to pay the wages of the officers and of the men out and back and no more—that is, allowing a year for the round voyage. The lines of the Rose of Devon were unusually good. She had a reputation for being a speedy boat, and that was more time than enough. It was my purpose to go around the world with her rather than retrace our course about Cape Horn after we reached the island, if we ever reached it, so we staked everything we had on the future. If my lady had had the least knowledge of the value of ships she would have seen how little way her £2,000 had gone, but she was as guileless as any other woman on that subject, and Master Ficklin was not much better. I lied to them both with a good grace and with an easy conscience. It was for her sake.

CHAPTER V.

Wherein the Duke Is Marked In Farewell.

BUT one thing strikes me as worthy to be chronicled before we embarked. When all was ready and everything aboard, I went back to Master Ficklin's in Tanstok, which was an easy day's journey from Plymouth sound, where the Rose of Devon lay, to fetch my lady and her maid. Master Ficklin's house was a somewhat large one and was surrounded by a walled garden, perhaps two acres in extent, which ran back from the house to a little brook which bounded the village.

Master Ficklin was at his office, although it was yet early in the morning when I called, intending to fetch my lady to Plymouth by coach, a special coach which I had engaged, by the way. His sister said that Mistress Wilberforce was in the garden and that she had company. She offered to show me to her presence, but I said I knew the way and could go there myself. I did not like the word company overmuch since her fine friends had more or less forgotten her.

I passed through the hall, out of the back door and into the garden. I stood a moment, hesitating, wondering whether after all I had the right or the privilege to break in upon such company as she might be entertaining.

when a scream which came faintly from the end of the garden decided me.

I broke into a run and in a few moments came upon my lady struggling in the arms of a man. What man, you ask? The Duke of Arcester! He had his arms around her, and although he was no great shakes of a man, he was much stronger than the slight girl he was grappling with. He held her tightly by the waist with one hand and with the other was trying to turn her head so that he could kiss her.

I was upon them before they realized my arrival. I grasped the duke by the collar of his coat with my left hand and with my right I fairly tore him away from my lady.

"Thank God, you have come!" she cried, reeling and staggering, her face flushed, her hair disheveled, her dress in disarray.

I heard that much and then the duke was upon me. Gritting his teeth and swearing frightful oaths he got to his feet—I had thrown him prone—dragged out his sword and rushed at me.

"You dog!" he cried. "You have balked me before and you interfere now. I have had enough of you and the world has."

He did not intend to give me any chance to defend myself apparently. My little mistress screamed. I heard her call my name and I suppose she thought I was done for, but sailors are proverbially quick witted, footed and banded, and I was not the least alert of seamen. I was wearing a longer, a heavier weapon than the duke's dress sword, but its weight was a matter of no moment to an arm like mine. I stepped aside as he lunged at me, drew it, and the next moment our blades clashed in earnest.

Now, I am a good fighter and no mean fencer. I can cross blades with any one on earth. My swift play must have looked to the duke as if I were surrounded by a wall of steel. Therefore he realized at once that his only chance lay in the energy and rapidity of his fence. Lunge succeeded lunge with lightning-like speed. I will admit that I was hard put to it for a time. It was with the greatest difficulty that I parried, but my lord was not built for the continuance of such violent exercise. Sweat came into his eyes, his thrusts grew less swift, if not less vicious, in their intent. After a few moments I saw that I had him. It was now my turn to attack. Something of the fury of my Saxon ancestors suddenly filled my veins. I beat down his defense by a series of terrific blows and finally shivered his sword. He stood before me panting, weaponless, yet, to give him his due, more or less undaunted. I raised my own blade.

"Would you strike a defenseless man?" he cried haughtily, still not blanching.

"You had no scruple in attacking a defenseless woman," I replied. "Nay," I thundered as he made a sudden motion, "stand where you are. What I shall do to you depends upon what I hear. If you move I swear to you that I will beat you down like the dog that you are."

I was amazed afterward at my temerity in thus addressing a duke, but you will understand my feelings. Without taking my eyes off of him I next addressed myself to my lady.

"Will you tell me now, Mistress Lucy," said I softly, "what this man purposed or said? I can see what he tried to do, but what was his meaning and intent?"

"He—he—wanted—me to go with him," faltered my lady.

"He renewed his offer of marriage?" I asked, with a sudden sinking of heart.

"No," whispered the girl.
"My God!" I cried. "Did you dare to—"

"Why should I marry a penniless baggage?" he sneered.

"I shall insure that you will remember," I said quietly, although I was blazing inside, "all the days of your life what you tried to do—the insult that you put upon this lady."

"Would you kill me?" he cried, as I stepped nearer to him.

"No," said I. "that would be too quick and easy an end to your punishment. I will put my mark upon you, her brand as a coward. Everybody who sees you will ask you about it, and you can explain it as you will. Two persons at least will know what the mark signifies, my lady and myself."

He stared at me absolutely uncomprehending, but before he could make a move I caught him around the breast, pinioned both his arms to his side and then I deliberately shortened my sword, holding it by the blade, and cut two long, deep gashes in his left cheek. He struggled and shrieked horribly as I did so, and my lady screamed as well, but I held him close until I finished.

"Now," said I to Mistress Lucy, "before I release him, one more question. Did—he kiss you?"

"No," answered Mistress Lucy faintly.

"Good!" I continued grimly. "Had he done so I would have marked the other cheek."

He was a handsome man, but those two scars roughly crisscrossed would never be eradicated, for I had cut deep with deliberate purpose. After that I released him, and he staggered away spitting blood, his cheek bleeding, a horrible looking object.

"That will be a lesson to your grace," said I, "not to insult an honest woman. I have no doubt there are many who would rejoice to see you now."

"I will have the law on you. I will our life," he spluttered out.

Sunday Tragedy In New Jersey Penitentiary.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 22.—While the chapel services were under way yesterday the usual Sunday morning quietude of the state prison was suddenly broken by loud shouts and pistol shots. A few seconds later Eli B. Stetser, a veteran deputy keeper, fell mortally wounded, but not until he had effectively winged William Diamond, leader in one of the most desperate attempts to escape in the history of the institution.

Stetser died three hours after Diamond's shot struck him in the chest. He never fully regained consciousness. Diamond received a bullet wound in each arm, the shots being fired by Stetser after he had himself been shot. Diamond will recover and with James Johnson, a negro pal who figured in the attempted escape, will face a charge of first degree murder.

Diamond and Johnson had been released from their cells by Deputy David Pearson to answer the doctor's call. Johnson caught Pearson about the neck and held him while Diamond snatched the keeper's pistol. Diamond ran in the direction of Stetser and Dr. J. W. Crane, shouting "Hands up!" Stetser drew his revolver and Diamond shot with mortal effect. Tottering as he fell, Stetser returned the fire. Pearson in the meantime reached Diamond, while Dr. Crane took away the revolver. Diamond had tried to shoot a second time, but the weapon missed fire. Johnson in the meantime had run back to his cell and undressed. When dragged out he made another break, diving headlong through a glass door leading to the yard. Here he was captured.

Diamond had served terms in the Cincinnati workhouse and Columbus penitentiary.

LATE DEATHS BY VIOLENCE

Indiana Shows an Unusually Bad Record For August.

Indianapolis, Sept. 22.—Forty-four persons committed suicide in Indiana in August and homicides numbered sixteen. The total number of deaths from external causes was 320, according to figures of the state board of health. Fifty-nine deaths resulted from railroad accidents and nine persons were killed in automobile accidents. The drownings were unusually large, numbering thirty-six. Seventeen died from the effects of heat.

Surrenders to Face Trial.

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 22.—Richard Brown, who has been in hiding following the shooting of Howard Starr at Webster, drove to the courthouse in this city with his father and gave himself up. The young man was at once released on bond of $3,000. Starr is now expected to recover. After the shooting Brown took to the woods. He is the son of one of Wayne county's wealthiest farmers.

Auto Driver's Neck Broken.

Goshen, Ind., Sept. 22.—Charles E. Miller, thirty-eight years old, salesman for a Cleveland coal company, was instantly killed when he lost control of his touring car, which hit the rails of the Northern Indiana Traction company line and, turning sharply, upset. When the machine was pulled over Miller was found dead. He had been crushed against the steering wheel and his neck was broken.

Victim Leaves Hospital.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 22.—Elizabeth Hurst, six-year-old daughter of John Hurst, the stone mason who blew up his bedroom with dynamite, killing himself and oldest daughter, has been released from the hospital. Her injuries were the least of the four. Fannie Hurst, the thirteen-year-old daughter, will remain in the hospital some time yet.

Streetcars Come Together.

Indianapolis, Sept. 22.—Fifteen persons were injured, six seriously, in a streetcar collision at West Michigan and Hiawatha streets.

STATE NEEDS AN ELECTRIC CHAIR

New Law's Provisions Must Be Carried Out.

TWO VICTIMS ARE PROVIDED

The Conviction of Harry Rasisco at Terre Haute and John Chirka at Crown Point, Both Wife Murderers, Renders It Imperative on the State to Provide an Engine of Death With Which to Carry Out Law's Mandate.

Indianapolis, Sept. 22.—That grim bill passed by the last Indiana general assembly provides the penalty to be suffered by Harry Rasisco of Terre Haute, who has been sentenced to death in the electric chair, at the end of 100 days, by Judge Charles M. Fortune of the Virgo circuit court. Rasisco pleaded guilty to murdering his wife and baby and waived his right to trial.

Rasisco will be the first prisoner to be executed in the Indiana state prison in more than six years. He probably will be the first to be put to death since the law changed the method of execution from hanging to electrocution. One other man in Indiana is facing sentence of death by electrocution. He is John Chirka, who killed his wife in Indiana Harbor in April, and who was convicted of murder in the first degree and ordered to die by a jury in the Lake circuit court at Crownpoint Thursday. Sentence in his case will be pronounced today by Judge W. C. McMahan.

Senator Rowland H. Jackson of Ripley county was the author of senate bill No. 13, providing for the substitution of the electric chair for the gallows. The legislature failed to make a specified appropriation to meet the expense of installing an electric chair, but Attorney General Honan said that there are two or three different funds which may be drawn upon for that purpose. The trustees of the prison have been waiting for an emergency to arise before providing for executions by electrocution.

"There won't be any trouble about getting a chair," Attorney General Honan said. "I haven't gone into the question fully, but offhand I would say that money from the prison's repair fund, the governor's contingent fund or possibly some other fund could be used."

The new law providing electrocution reads as follows:

"The punishment of death prescribed by law shall be inflicted in every case by causing to pass through the body of the convict a current of electricity of sufficient intensity to cause death, and the application and continuance of such current through the body of such convict until such convict is dead. The death penalty shall be inflicted before the hour of sunrise upon such day, not less than 100 days after the conviction as the court may adjudge. The warden of the state prison, or in case of his death, inability or absence, his deputy, shall be the executioner. The execution shall take place inside the walls of the Indiana state prison in a room arranged for that purpose. It shall be the duty of the warden and the board of trustees of such prison to provide the necessary room and appliances to carry out the electrocution as provided in this act."
